

I am commenting on the possible decision to change local radio programming in our area. I listen to K-Love radio station on FM 89.9. I have listened to them for several years both here and in the San Antonio area. I am disheartened to hear that I may lose their inspirational programming. With some of the things that are currently offered as what is called "music", I find K-Love something I can actually let my kids listen to without fear of having foul, vulgar language blasting out of the speakers. I believe this station should be left alone to be able to provide uplifting, "safe", inspirational music for my kids as well as everyone else's in this area. I don't feel that some big conglomerate should have the right to choose what they feel people want to listen to. I go to K-Love for comfort, guidance, inspiration and renewal when needed. I'd hate to have that taken away from me (and others).
